1. Introduction

This Documentation contains the information about the coursework of Module, Information System. The website made according to the coursework contains six web pages which contains Home Page, Research Page, Products Page, Contact us Page, Blog Page and About us page. The wireframe of the website was created using a tool called Balsamiq, where we planned, discussed and made wireframe of how we want our website to look like. The website is made by using HTML, CSS for designs and JavaScript for small functionalities.

The name of the website is PAHI-LAA. The name PAHI-LAA symbolizes footprint and 1st choice at the same time. This website aims to contain all the features asked in the coursework.

Explore our pages:

Home: A brief introduction of content present in all webpages is contained in this page.

Research: Discover the e-commerce inspirations and design research that shaped the PAHI-LAA website and its features.

Products: Browse our curated collection of footwear, with details on each item and filters to refine your search.

Contact Us: Connect with our team through various contact options or use the direct message form for your inquiries.

Blog: Read our articles on footwear technology, industry trends, and how innovations are shaping shoe design and sales.

About Us: Get to know the PAHI-LAA brand story and the team members who developed this e-commerce experience.

1.1 Tools and Technologies used:

The development of the PAHI-LAA website leveraged the following core technologies and tools:

HTML:

Used as the foundational structure for all web pages, defining the content and its semantic meaning.

CSS:

Employed for styling the visual presentation of the website, including layout, typography, colors, and responsiveness. This involved external, internal, and inline CSS.

Java Script:

Utilized to add interactivity and dynamic features to the website, such as image sliders, form validations, pop-up messages, and dynamic content changes.

Visual Studio Code (VS code):

Served as the primary text editor for writing and managing the HTML, CSS, and JavaScript code.

Balsamiq (or similar for wire framing):

While not explicitly stated for the tool, the concept of wire framing was essential for planning the layout and structure of each webpage before development. We used Balsamiq for this purpose.

1.2.VERDICT

In the end, we're genuinely proud of what we've created. As a team, we collaborated closely to build an online footwear store using HTML, CSS ,and JavaScript. We aimed to make the website user-friendly and visually appealing, so customers can easily browse and discover different styles of shoes. Throughout the process, we focused on keeping the design clean and straightforward to ensure a smooth and enjoyable experience for anyone visiting the site.

2.Wireframe:

For wire frames, we used Balsamiq. It was an awesome tool to figure out how all of it was going to look and feel without writing down a single line of code. We kind of quickly sketched where we were placing everything—nav, large blocks of content, footers.

Technically, Balsamiq provided a very good visual sketch, so to speak, of the Home page, the Research section, our Products portfolio, the Contact Us page, the Blog design and the About Us page. It was getting the structure on paper and making sure the user flow would be easy to follow from the very start. That way, everyone could see how the site was going to be organized.

3.Development

The development of the PAHI-LAA website involved using standard web technologies to bring the designs and functionalities to life.

3.1.HTML (Hyper Text Markup Language)

HTML formed the skeleton of every page within the PAHI-LAA website. We utilized a semantic structure to ensure clarity and accessibility.

Compulsory Tags:

: Extensively used for grouping content and creating layout structures (e.g., containers, grids, sections for header, main content, footer, product cards, team member blocks).

```
<header>

       PAHI-LAA

        <li>Home</li> <!-- Active link for Home -->
        <li>Research</li>

    </nav>

       <input type="text" placeholder="Search for brand, color, etc." />

3.2.CSS (Cascading Style Sheets)

To make the website visually appealing and ensure it matched our design mockups, we used CSS. This involved styling all the HTML elements – things like colors, fonts, spacing, and layout. We utilized internal CSS for page-specific styles, inline CSS for minor, single-element tweaks, and external CSS for global styles that apply across the entire site. We also made sure to include comments in our CSS to keep things organized.

External CSS:

A primary external stylesheet (e.g., header.css for common header/footer styles) was created. This file contains the overall basic design and layout rules applied across multiple pages, ensuring consistency in branding, typography, and color schemes.

<link rel="stylesheet" href=".header.css">

Internal CSS: Internal CSS, placed within `<style>` tags in the `<head>` section of individual HTML files, was used for page-specific styling. This was particularly useful for unique layouts or elements that didn't warrant global rules, like specific styling for the "About Us" team member layout or the "Research" page's comparison blocks.

```

<head>
  <meta charset="UTF-8">
  <meta name="viewport" content="width=device-width, initial-scale=1.0">
  <title>Home - PAHI-LAA</title>
  <!-- Link to Font Awesome for icons -->
  <link rel="stylesheet" href="https://cdnjs.cloudflare.com/ajax/libs/font-awesome/5.15.4/css/all.min.css">
  <link rel="stylesheet" href="./header.css">
  <style>
    /* General styles shared across pages */
    * {
      margin: 0; padding: 0;
      box-sizing: border-box;
    }

    body { font-family: Arial, sans-serif;
      line-height: 1.6;
      color: #333;
      background-color: #f0f0f0; /* Light grey background for the body */
    }

    .container {
      width: 90%;
      max-width: 1200px;
      margin: 0 auto;
      padding: 20px 0;
      /* Adjust padding for specific sections if needed */
    }
  </style>

Inline CSS: Inline CSS was used sparingly for highly specific, one-off styling adjustments where creating a separate class or ID was not efficient. Examples include applying a unique color to a single icon or adjusting the margin/padding of a particular element in a unique context.

```

    <thead>
      <tr>
        <th colspan="3" style="background-color: #f8f8f8; color: #333; font-size: 1.2em; padding: 10px; text-align: left; border: 1px solid black;">F
    </tr>

```

CSS Comments: Comments (e.g., /* Main navigation styles */) were incorporated into both external and internal CSS files to organize rules.

```
margin-top: 20px;
max-width: 1200px;
/* Match main content width */
margin: 20px auto 0 auto; /* Center and add space */
padding: 0 20px;
/* Added horizontal padding */
}
```

3.3.JavaScript

JavaScript was used to add a layer of interactivity to the website. While our use was focused on specific enhancements, it helped in making the site more dynamic. For instance, this could include things like popup features or small content changes without needing to reload the page. We aimed for creative touches and included comments in our JavaScript code for clarity.

External JS: One external JavaScript file (e.g., searchbar.js and potentially a main script.js) was created. This file houses reusable scripts, such as the logic for the search bar functionality or global interactive elements.

```
html > JS searchbarjs > ...
1 const searchInput = document.getElementById('search-input');
2         const searchIcon = document.getElementById('search-icon');
3
4         // Function to show the success pop-up
5         function showSearchSuccess() {
6             // Check if the search input is not empty
7             if (searchInput.value.trim() !== '') {
8                 alert('Searched successfully');
9             }
10        }
11
12         // Event listener for Enter key press in the search input 13         searchInput.addEventListener('keypress', function(event) {
14             if (event.key === 'Enter') {
15                 event.preventDefault(); // Prevent form submission if inside a form
16                 showSearchSuccess();
17             }
18         });
19
20         // Event listener for clicking the search icon
21         searchIcon.addEventListener('click', function() {
22             showSearchSuccess();
23         });

Internal JS: Internal JavaScript was included on pages where specific, non-reusable functionality was required.

At least 1 function: The contactus.html page includes an internal script with a function to handle form submission feedback. The home.html page has JavaScript for its image slider.

At least 1 pop-up feature: The form submission on contactus.html uses an alert() to provide feedback to the user, fulfilling the pop-up requirement.

Dynamically change content: The image slider on home.html dynamically changes the displayed image. The hover effect on the "About Us" page, which reveals team member descriptions, also dynamically alters page content.

<script>
    let currentSlide = 0;
    const slides = document.querySelector('.slides');
    const dots = document.querySelectorAll('.dot');
    const totalSlides = 3;

    function goToSlide(index) {
        currentSlide = index;
        slides.style.transform = `translateX(-${currentSlide * 33.33}%)`;
        updateDots();
    }

    function updateDots() { dots.forEach((dot, index) => {
            dot.classList.toggle('active', index === currentSlide);
        });
    }

    function autoSlide() { currentSlide = (currentSlide + 1) % totalSlides;
        goToSlide(currentSlide);
    }

    setInterval(autoSlide, 3000);
</script>

JS Comments: Comments (e.g., // Function to validate email format or /* Slider Initialization */) were used in both external and internal JavaScript to explain the purpose of functions, logic flow, and variable declarations, making the code easier to understand and debug.

4. Testing

Throughout the development process, we performed regular testing. This involved checking that all links directed to the correct pages, forms submitted information as expected, and the layout remained consistent across different common web browsers. We also looked at basic responsiveness to ensure the site was usable on different screen sizes.

4.1. Test 1:

Table 1 Test 1:

Objective	To verify that the contact form provides a pop-up message upon submission.
-----------	--

Preconditions	Contactus.html page is opened in the browser.
Test Steps	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Navigate to the Contact Us page. 2. Fill in all required fields (Name, Email, Subject, Message). 3. Click the "Send Now" button.
Expected Result	An alert box/pop-up message appears stating "Message sent successfully!" and the form fields reset.
Actual Result	An alert box appeared with the success message, and the form reset.
Status	Pass
Notes	Also tested with empty fields, which should (and did, if implemented) prevent submission or show an error.

4.2. Test 2:

Table 2 Test 2

Objective	To verify that the image slider on the Home page (home.html) displays different images and transitions automatically.
Preconditions	The home.html page is loaded in the browser. The JavaScript for the slider is correctly linked and enabled.
Test Steps	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Open home.html in a web browser. 2. Observe the hero section containing the image slider. 3. Wait for approximately 3-5 seconds (or the defined interval) to see if the image changes. 4. Continue observing for several transitions to ensure it cycles through the images.

	defined images.
Expected Result	The images in the slider should transition smoothly to the next image in the sequence at the predefined interval (i.e. every 3 seconds). It should cycle through all /images/banner11.jpg, /images/ban2.gif, and /images/banner1.jpg.
Actual Result	The images in image slider transitioned smoothly to the next image in the sequence at the predefined interval(i.e. every 3 seconds).
Status	Pass

4.3.Test 3:

Table 3 Test 3

Objective	To verify that the product cards on the Product page (product.html) exhibit the intended hover effect (e.g., slight lift or shadow change).
Preconditions	The product.html page is loaded in the browser. CSS for hover effects is correctly applied.
Test Steps	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Open product.html in a web browser. 2. Identify a product card in the product grid. 3. Move the mouse cursor over the product card. 4. Observe any visual changes to the card (e.g., shadow intensity, slight upward movement). 5. Move the mouse cursor off the card and observe if it returns to its original state.

	state.
Expected Result	When the mouse hovers over a product card, it should display a visual feedback effect as defined in the CSS (box-shadow: 0 4px 10px rgba(0, 0, 0, 0.15);). When the mouse moves away, the card should revert to its default appearance.
Actual Result	The product cards exhibited the expected shadow change on hover, and returned to their original state when the cursor was moved away.
Status	Pass

4.4.Test 4:

Table 4 Test 4

Objective	To verify that hovering over a team member's card on the About Us page (aboutus.html) reveals their description, and the description hides when not hovering.
Preconditions	The aboutus.html page is loaded. JavaScript and CSS for the hover effect are correctly implemented.

Test Steps	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Open aboutus.html in a web browser. 2. Locate the "Meet The Brains" section. 3. Move the mouse cursor over one of the team member cards (e.g., Asmit Bhujel). 4. Observe if the description overlay appears. 5. Move the mouse cursor off the team member card. 6. Observe if the description overlay disappears.
Expected Result	When hovering over a team member card, the .description div should become visible (opacity changes from 0 to 2 as per CSS). When the cursor is moved away, the description should become hidden again (opacity returns to 0).
Actual Result	The description overlay correctly appeared on hover and disappeared when the mouse was moved off the team member card. The opacity transition was smooth.
Status	Pass

Asmit was responsible for writing the documentation and gathering useful research for the project. He made sure everything we did was clearly recorded and explained. His work helped us stay organized and made it easier to understand our progress and ideas.

4.5.Test 5:

Table 5 Test 5

Objective	To verify that clicking the "Visit Blog →" button for a blog post on the Blog page (blog.html) correctly navigates to the specified external URL in a new tab/window.
Preconditions	The blog.html page is loaded. Internet connection is active.
Test Steps	1. Open blog.html.

	2. Locate any blog link item (the first one, "Unveiling the Latest Sneaker Technology"). 3. Click the "Visit Blog →" button associated with that item.
Expected Result	A new browser tab or window should open, and it should navigate to the URL specified in the href attribute of the parent  tag (e.g., "https://sneakernews.com/").
Actual Result	Clicking the "Visit Blog →" button successfully opened the corresponding external website in a new tab as expected.
Status	Pass

5. Conclusion

At the beginning of this project, we were both excited and a bit unsure about what lay ahead.

Although we had a basic understanding of static web pages at the start, it wasn't until we actually began building that we realized how little we truly knew. Developing a functional website using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript turned out to be a challenging yet rewarding journey. Throughout this experience, we ran into many technical problems, especially with layout design and scripting errors. Thanks to our instructor's guidance and the support of our lab mentor, we managed to overcome these hurdles. We learned to troubleshoot our own mistakes, search for solutions online, and apply what we picked up during lectures. . Building wireframes with Balsamiq helped us visualize the layout before we wrote any code, which proved extremely useful. Despite the roadblocks, we stayed focused and worked hard together. This project gave us not only coding knowledge, but also the confidence to solve real-world problems as a team.

5.1.Techologies Utilized

The development of the PAHI-LAA website primarily utilized HTML for structuring content, CSS (external, internal, and inline) for styling and visual layout, and JavaScript (external and internal) for adding interactivity, dynamic content updates, and user feedback mechanisms like pop-ups. Visual Studio Code was the chosen development environment, and wireframing (using [Your Tool]) played a key role in the initial planning phase.

5.2.Learning Outcomes

This project provided invaluable hands-on experience in front-end web development. We gained a deeper understanding of:

1. Semantic HTML and structuring web content effectively.
2. CSS concepts including the box model, flexbox/grid for layout, and responsive design considerations.
3. The importance of separating concerns (structure, style, behavior).
4. Basic JavaScript DOM manipulation, event handling, and creating simple interactive features.
5. The web development workflow, from planning and wireframing to coding and testing.
6. Team collaboration and version control (if applicable, mention Git/GitHub if used).

5.3.Challenges Encountered and Solutions

During the project, we faced a few challenges:

1. Challenge 1: CSS Layouts: Achieving complex or perfectly responsive layouts, especially with features like the product grid or team member alignment, was initially challenging.

Solution: We extensively consulted CSS documentation (e.g., MDN Web Docs, CSS-Tricks), experimented with Flexbox and Grid properties, and used browser developer tools to debug and refine layouts iteratively.

2. Challenge 2: JavaScript Interactivity: Implementing dynamic features like the image slider or the hover effects for team descriptions required careful JavaScript logic.

Solution: We broke down the problems into smaller parts, researched specific JavaScript methods for DOM manipulation and event listeners, and tested scripts incrementally. Online tutorials and examples were also helpful.

3. Challenge 3: Design Consistency: Ensuring a consistent look and feel across all six pages required careful planning of CSS.

Solution: We established a base set of styles in our external CSS file for common elements like typography, colors, and navigation, and then built upon these with page-specific internal CSS.

5.4.Potential Future Improvements

While the current PAHI-LAA website serves as a strong front-end foundation, several improvements could be made in the future:

- 1) Full E-commerce Functionality: Integration with a backend system to manage inventory, user accounts, a shopping cart, and a secure checkout process.
- 2) Advanced JavaScript Features: More sophisticated product filtering and sorting, live search suggestions, and richer animations.
- 3) Enhanced Responsiveness: Further refinement of CSS to ensure optimal viewing and interaction across an even wider range of devices and screen sizes.
- 4) Accessibility (A11y) Audit: A thorough review and implementation of accessibility best practices to ensure the site is usable by people with disabilities.
- 5) Performance Optimization: Minifying CSS/JS files, optimizing images, and leveraging browser caching for faster load times.
